Objectives of the Course:

How has nationalism emerged as a major force in history? Why? What are the consequences of a global economy/nation for national belonging? This course examines the history of nationalism from the French Revolution to today. We will explore how nationalism, as a phenomenon, has forwarded the creation of sovereign nation-states, and we will look closely at how nationalism, as an ideology, has inspired fascist regimes, racist movements and policies, as well as ethnic cleansing and genocide. We will also investigate how questions of race, class, gender, and colonialism have influenced notions of national identity and consciousness. Classics of nationalism will be covered as well as more recent theories of the postmodern.

Learning Outcomes:

After completion of the course students are expected to be able to:

1. Assess the historical and sociological origins of nationalism and its impact on international relations and ethnic conflict.
2. Compare the struggles between ethnic groups to preserve traditional cultures and space for 'negative liberty'.
3. Explore, analyze and compare basic concepts such as nation, ethnicity, patriotism, chauvinism, expansionist nationalism, anti-colonial nationalism, etc.
4. Recount the major ideological/political approaches to nationalism (i.e. Liberalism Conservatism, Socialism, Anarchism, Fascism and Fundamentalism).
5. Report on and appraise alternative views to nationalism (e.g. internationalism, universalism, cosmopolitanism and supranationalism).
6. Appraise the impact of nationalism on regional and international conflict.
