

Course Syllabus

|                         |                          |                                |
|-------------------------|--------------------------|--------------------------------|
| Course Code      | Course Title      | ECTS Credits            |
| LALI-372DL              | Language and Identity    | 6                              |
| Prerequisites    | Department        | Semester                |
| LALI-240DL              | Languages and Literature | Fall                           |
| Type of Course   | Field             | Language of Instruction |
| Required                | Linguistics              | English                        |
| Level of Course  | Lecturer(s)       | Year of Study           |
| 1 st Cycle   | Dr Andry Sophocleous     | 3 rd year           |
| Mode of Delivery | Work Placement    | Corequisites            |
| Distance Learning       | N/A                      | None                           |

Course Objectives:

The main objectives of the course are to:

- study how our personal and social, collective and national identities are reflected in the language we use;
- investigate how language influences our perceptions of ourselves and others;
- explore the link between language and identity in connection to issues relevant to standard and nonstandard languages, self-categorisation and language choice in bilingual/bidialectal and multilingual settings;
- examine language in relation to broader societal issues such as education, ethnic identity, politics, gender, age and power.

Learning Outcomes:

After completion of the course students are expected to be able to:

1. Analyse the connection between language and power
2. Evaluate how social factors influence language standardisation and the impact these factors have on speakers' language use and identity-construction
3. Demonstrate a knowledge of how language use and ethnic identity are inextricably linked
4. Apply theoretical concepts examining identity as a social construct
5. Conceptualize how language, identity and education are linked and why powerful institutions such as education and the media encourage the use of 'legitimate' varieties but restrain the use of less-prestigious varieties
6. Demonstrate a knowledge of the common methodologies employed to examine linguistic construction of identity in relation to self- and social-categorisation

Course Content:

- Discourse and identity construction
- Language standardisation
- Language and social class
- Accommodation Theory
- Social Identity Theory
- Language and Education
- Language attitudes towards linguistic variation
- Language and Gender

Learning Activities and Teaching Methods:

Recorded lectures, activities and online class discussions

Assessment Methods:

Two homework assignments, final exam, and online discussions and activities

Required Textbooks / Readings:

| Title  | Author(s)       | Publisher                        | Year | ISBN                  |
|--|-----------------|----------------------------------|------|-----------------------|
| Sociolinguistics:An Introductionto Languageand Society | Trudgill, Peter | Penguin                          | 2001 | 0140289216            |
| Language andIdentity   | Edwards, John   | CambridgeUniversityPress | 2009 | 978-0-521-69602-9 |

Recommended Textbooks / Readings:

| Title                            | Author(s)             | Publisher            | Year | ISBN          |
|----------------------------------|-----------------------|----------------------|------|---------------|
| Language,Nation andPower | McColl Millar, Robert | PalgraveMcMillan | 2005 | 1-4039-3972-1 |