Course Objectives:

The main objectives of the course are to:

- explain why change occurs, how it can be investigated and explained;
- what the effects of change are in terms of phonology, grammar and lexicon.
- investigate issues such as language birth and death, pidgins and creoles and the process of language standardisation;
- question why language change takes place and how sounds and syntactic changes spread through a community

Learning Outcomes:

After completion of the course students are expected to be able to:

1. Demonstrate a knowledge of how languages begin and end
2. Study changes in progress
3. Examine the process of pidginisation and creolisation
4. Examine the key concepts in the study of language change
5. Show a detailed familiarity with the major events in the history of English
6. Assess issues related to language change (social, psychological and political)
7. Examine how sound and syntactic changes spread through a language
8. Consider how age and social variation between speakers lead to the spread of change

Course Content:

- The course will be divided into three large sections which will explain the change of language:
1. Beginnings of languages: Language contact, language birth (pidginisation, creolisation, standardisation)
 2. Language Death: reasons leading to language death
 3. Transition periods: study changes in process such as lexical, semantic, phonological, morphological and syntactic changes. Investigate how these changes spread.
 4. Causation: why change takes place
