SMOKING kills. Everyone knows it, Including Smokers.

Read the passage Smoking Kills: Everyone knows it, Including Smokers and choose the correct answer from the selection.

Although there are around 1.1 billion smokers in the world (about one-third of the global population aged 15 and over), there are unfortunately a great many who believe that they are 'healthier' smokers than others. Crazy as it

22. sound, they have been duped by the tobacco industry into 23. they have less chance of developing smoking related life-threatening diseases.

Low tar cigarettes are one of the big cons of the tobacco industry. People naturally assume that brands labelled "light" or "mild" are somehow better for them than ordinary cigarettes. In truth, however, low tar cigarettes contain the same amount and the same type of tobacco 24. ordinary cigarettes. The only difference is the number of air holes in the filter. The amount of tar that is let through the filter is measured using a machine, not a real person. The machine does not mimic how people smoke in real life. In real life, you inhale about the same amount of tar smoking low tar cigarettes as you do smoking ordinary brands. This is because smokers compensate for the holes in the filters by unconsciously inhaling more deeply, or right down to the filter instead of leaving any 25., and even holding the cigarette in a certain way in the hand or mouth to get more nicotine. Most people do this without even noticing.

26. there is evidence to suggest that 'light' cigarettes increase the risk of lung adenocarcinoma, possibly because of deeper inhalation.

Property Predictions

Read the article and choose the correct answer from the selection.

In December 2003, Nationwide Building Society predicted that house prices were to rise by 9% in 2004. It said the estimated rise was to contribute to first time buyers remaining an "endangered species".

Nationwide's prediction was 40. the forecast from the Halifax, which expected property values to rise 8% the following year. Alex Bannister, Nationwide's group economist, said: "The housing market will carry considerable momentum 41. early 2004, and we expect house price growth to be biased towards the first part of the year." Like Halifax, Nationwide predicted the north of England would 42. in 2004, notching up price growth of 12%. Yorkshire and Humberside homeowners were 43. to enjoy an increase of 12% next year, while those in the north-west and Northern Ireland were in line for increases of 11%. London was forecast to see the lowest price growth - 6%, said Nationwide.

In November, the lending total of v24.6bn was down from v27.4bn in October, but was still 20% higher than the v20.5bn lent by banks and building societies in November 2002.

The fall was partly due to seasonal factors, said the CML. It added: "44. to next year, we expect house price inflation to decline but the market looks set to remain active - despite higher interest rates."

To Whom it May Concern:

Mohammad Rashid worked for me at Ariston Technologies for five years, as a senior technical instructor.

I am writing this letter to confirm that his recent layoff from Ariston Technologies was not in any way tied to his performance, and to highly recommend him as an employee in your organisation.

Ariston Technologies went through drastic reorganisation, resulting in a considerable reduction of its workforce. Unfortunately, this resulted in dissolving the technical department and left no position for Mohammad.

Mohammad is a conscientious, highly-skilled technical instructor, worthy of at least a senior or management position.

He has keen insight into the learning process, and is an expert in needs analysis, project management, course development, and classroom instruction. Mohammad 's in-depth product knowledge, unique instructional techniques, and excellent people skills have consistently received rave reviews from his students.

If you would like to speak to me about Mohammad 's skills, talents and work habits, feel free to call (357) 26 43 58 91 or email smarkides@aristontechno.com

Sincerely,
